

The National Association of Broadcasters has no right to tell a paying satellite customer what he or she listens to. If they were truly concerned about the lack of competition on the radio, they should look at the giant radio companies (Clear Channel, Infinity) buying up many of the local radio stations and broadcasting the same 20 songs over and over again. There are only so many times people can hear the same Byonce song in one day before they go mad. Keep up the great work, XM!
